

U.S. Army Contracting Command

Dr. Carol Lowman, Deputy to the Commanding General

Dr. Carol E. Lowman is the deputy to the commanding general of the U.S. Army Contracting Command. Prior to assuming her current duties, she served as ACC's second executive director from September 2011 to May 2012.

ACC is a major subordinate command of the U.S. Army Materiel Command. Headquartered at Redstone Arsenal, Ala., ACC includes two subordinate commands: the Mission and Installation Contracting Command and the Expeditionary Contracting Command, and six major contracting centers that support AMC's other major subordinate and life cycle management commands.

ACC provides global contracting support to war fighters through the full spectrum of military operations. ACC consists of more than 6,300 military and civilian employees worldwide who awarded and managed more than 198,000 contractual actions valued at more than $86.9 billion in fiscal year 2011.

Prior to her current position, Dr. Lowman served as ACC's deputy director. Before that she was the acting director, Mission and Installation Contracting Command, Fort Sam Houston, Texas. There she helped manage more than 1,660 military and civilian personnel located at 41 installations within the continental United States. MICC awards approximately $8.2 billion a year in new acquisitions for the Army, Department of Defense and other federal organizations.

Dr. Lowman has also served as the director and principal assistant responsible for contracting and chief, Business Systems Division for the Army Contracting Agency Southern Region in Atlanta, Ga. She also served as chief, Management Branch for the Contracting Division at the U. S. Army Forces Command at Fort McPherson, Ga. Dr. Lowman began her Army career as a contracting intern with the Information Systems Command at Fort Ritchie, Md.

She was appointed to the Senior Executive Service on March 6, 2005.

Dr. Lowman holds a doctorate in Public Administration from the University of Georgia, a master's degree from Troy State University and a bachelor's degree from Canisius College.

Dr. Lowman has received the Meritorious Civilian Service Award, the Association of the United States Army Award at the Sustaining Base and Leadership Course and several Commanders' Awards.

On October 6, 2011 Dr. Lowman was appointed by the president of the United States as a member of the Committee for Purchase from People who are Blind or Severely Disabled.
